LOT1: Commercial hardware, software, and networking equipment

- Desktop Computers
- Laptop Computers
- Handheld Computing Devices, including peripherals - Peripherals are anything directly attached to Desktop and Laptop computers such as a printer, monitor or keyboard. Other examples include a projector that displays output from a computer on a screen or a digital camera that allows downloads to a computer.
- Workstations - Workstations are defined as computers designed for multiple concurrent users. Servers and server ancillary equipment such as server racks and server cabling also belong here.
- Software - This normally entails software that is bundled / packaged with other items such as warranty, maintenance support, or installation for a single price. However, stand-alone software products will also be accepted here.
- Networking Equipment - This includes Routers, switches, firewalls, and Network Storage devices, network racks and other network associated ancillary equipment. Internet Protocol (IP) Telephony may also be placed in this LOT or LOT2.
